Dear Mam,

Thank you for having me conduct the session for the career guidance cell today.

It's a privilege for any student to contribute back to his alma mater. I feel very distinctively honored & grateful for being chosen for today's session.

I believe that given the time, circumstances & relevance, tried my best to tell the students [that are future professionals] to stand out and be best. Also, to be what you always taught us to be - A life long Tolani student.

I wish all of the participating faculty & students all the very best in their future endeavours.

Thank you.

Yours very sincerely & respectfully,

Gaurav

Dear Sir,

This is Anusha Poojary from Tolani College, a student of TYBAF.

I am writing this mail with regards to the banking field opportunity and request you to help me with more information and guidance on the same.

I have fews questions with respect to the banking field.

1. How can I prepare myself for bank exams?
2. Who is eligible to become a banker?
3. How can I get detailed updates with regards to changes made by the RBI? Do we have any sites like this for E.g TaxGuru ?
4. What is the first designation that Bank has with respect to work ?

I would really appreciate your valuable guidance and revert on the same.

Thank you so much for this opportunity and would love to seek more and more information from you so that I can boost my career to the next level.

Thanks & Regards,

Dear Madam/Sir,

Thanks for giving me an opportunity to mentor and guide.
I will try my maximum to help to gain more knowledge and insight in the banking sector.
Please find the below mentioned answers to the question.

1. How can I prepare myself for bank exams?

Banking exam is mainly conducted by IBPS. Pattern for exams is like Prelims and Mains which mainly include English, General Knowledge, Banking, Essay etc. I have attached a recent recruitment notification of SBI and IBPS for your reference. For preparation of any banking exam, the basics should be clear in subjects like English, practicing math's, reading newspapers and most important is time management etc.

2. Who is eligible to become a banker?

Minimum is Graduation for Clerks/General Officers in Banks. But there are Recruitment for specialist officer in various departments like credit, risk, IT and treasury for that requirement is IT, MBA and CA etc.

3. How can I get detailed updates with regards to changes made by the RBI? Do we have any sites like this for E.g TaxGuru ?

RBI is the regulator for banks in India. For any updates with regards to regulatory information you can visit RBI site. It is very informative and subjective like Master Circular and Master Direction.

Apart from RBI site , you can visit below mentioned sites which is very useful for gaining more information into the banking sector.

- Indian Banking Association ( IBA )
- Indian Institute of Banking and Finance( IIBF )
- National Payment Corporation of India ( NPCI )
- Institute for development and research in Banking Technology ( IDRBT )
- The Banking Codes and Standard board of India ( BCSBI )

4. What is the first designation that Bank has with respect to work ?

There are two entry for banking

one is in Public Sector Banks and Private Bank

First for PSBs, Entry level is either through clerk or Probationary Officer.

Exam is conducted by IBPS and respective banks.

Secondly for Private Banks is mainly through Customer Associate, Back Office etc.

I hope the above is very brief and clear. For any further information you are free to contact me on my mobile no 9769701879.

Thanks and Regards,

Ravi Essaki.

Respected sir,

Thank you for your support and guidance. I would like to have some more knowledge on ACCA course. Till July 2021 I was pursuing CA i have given 2 to 3 attempts but couldn't clear even one IPCC group. So I am planning to shift to some other course, I am not sure what to pursue in the future. So one of the many options is ACCA. Please throw some light on it.

Yours Sincerely

Hi Sushmita,

Glad to hear from you.

I understand your dilemma. Majority of the CA aspirants face this. Before quitting CA, do evaluate what is going wrong. If it's on the efforts you should be able to do it. If you think you have given your best then you may think of quitting it. But trust me, if you give your best, there is no way you would not thrive. If you think about an alternative, ACCA is a good option.

There are some global courses as mentioned below:

CPA.
CMA
CFA
FRM

You should choose wisely based upon your passion. Evaluate each of them and see if you would be happy in the field post completion of the course.

It's my honour to contribute my bit. Let me know in case you have any more questions.

Need some advice regarding my career

Hello Vishnu Sir and a very pleasant afternoon,

First of all thank you for taking the time to help students with their queries regarding their career.

I am quite uncertain about what to do after my graduation and I could use some guidance. I have the following questions, I would be grateful if you could just answer them.

1. I haven't participated in extracurricular activities during my degree college. How bad that's gonna affect me during my job search?
2. Does having any certifications for computer programs helps? (Eg. MS Office suite, Tally, MIS etc). In more precise way, I meant to ask let's just say if I do know advanced excel so do I need to get certification for it because that would kind of waste of time and money as it would be just repetitive and unnecessary.
3. Would learning an extra language help or it's just another glimmer in your resume? That is, After I start working at a firm I might never use that specific language I might put efforts on?
4. If I am planning to give CA, how many attempts should I fix it if I keep failing?
5. How many backups should I keep if I am gonna give CA?
6. Do you think one can self study for CA intermediate and score fabulous marks?
7. How do I get any interview calls for internship if I pass CA Intermediate but just with the minimum percentage?
8. I would also like to know if I can contact you again?

Sorry for taking your precious time and asking loads of questions. Whether or not if you could answer this questions I am just thankful as you took out your time for reading this far.

Sincerely,

Hi Yogesh,

Very glad to hear from you.

The questions you asked depict the thrust to achieve things in life.

Below are my comments on each of your questions.

1. Extra curricular activities are indeed valuable. Even if it does not give any help in career, it certainly helps to build your personality.
2. Certificate helps to build yourself before meeting in person. Once you have been called upon for an interview/meet your communication and display of technical skills would prevail.
3. You are quite right. The additional language helps. However learning something different always rejuvenates yourself within. If you get a chance you should learn it. Moreso if you plan for immigration in future, this will be an added advantage.
4. CA is more of a journey than just an exam, I like your attitude of limiting failure. The number of attempts would depend upon your evaluation of yourself. Normally it takes 2-3 attempts to crack each level. You should analyse your capabilities and circumstances and set the limit.
5. Again would depend upon the circumstances. I always suggest that Do not follow others. Century on a green pitch can not be compared with that on a dry pitch.
6. Definitely. I always suggest that self learning is best. Proper time management and execution is key. Believe Yourself. Giving my own example, I studied the majority of IPCC in the BAF syllabus at that time.
7. ICAI has a placement programme, You can use that as well.

Its completely my pleasure to contribute my bit. You can connect any time in case you need more guidance.

Dear Masuma,

If you opt for teaching school students, it is a good opportunity in the wake increasing number of international schools that help you carve a niche.

Firstly you need to pursue a Bachelor of Education.

( Reference : <https://www.sndt.ac.in/index.php/programmes/degree-courses/bed-in-education>)

Meanwhile, I would suggest you undergo certificate courses available from various universities on the OER platform. This will provide you with a cutting edge over others.

Thanks ma'am,

I also want to know which certificate courses I should do and which University offers the courses and it should be done after my graduation? Lalita ma'am, the link you shared for the b'Ed course is of Pune University I think. As we live in Mumbai, can you share the list of best colleges which are located in Mumbai. And I have to appear for Cet examination as well, so when to appear for that examination, after my graduation? And when that examination will be going to be held, means in which month of the year. Ma'am I also want to know the fee Structure of b'Ed course, the course offers the aided section or not?

Waiting for your reply.

Dear Yash,

Thank you for your mail. Sorry for the late reply.

CA itself has a huge scope and there are a lot of non-traditional new avenues . New practicing areas are emerging like for e.g.

- Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC)
- Business Consultancy
- Valuation
- Forensic audit and fraud Detection/prevention
- RERA

- Subsidy facilitation
- Loan Syndication
- Virtual CFO
- Accounts Outsourcing

In case you still want to go for an additional degree, there are several courses which you can do along with CA depending upon your interest.

CA+CFA - If you are interested in the finance field, stock market, corporate finance, equity research, investment banking and portfolio management.

CA+CMA - If you are interested in costing. It will also offer high payscale in the manufacturing industry.

CA+CS+Law - If interested in legal and theoretical subjects. The scope for CS has increased a lot over the years.

Along With studies, if you develop one of your interest areas or hobbies as part of your routine and develop it, it would help you in the long term.

E.g. Dancing, singing, reading, any outdoor sport, swimming, photography etc.

Please feel free to write to me anytime.

Best Regards,
Rajesh
